PATE-HALL

WEDDING.

Takes Place Sunday Afternoon
At The Beautiful Country
Home Of The Bride's Parents—Large Number Of Guests Present.

THE REV. GAYER OFFICIATES.

Sunday afternoon, May the second, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pate, occurred one of the prettiest home weddings that has taken place in this county for some time, when Miss Emma T. Pate became the wife of Mr. Herbert Hall. The ceremony was performed at two o'clock by the Rev. Gayer, of Irvington. In a most impressive manner, amid a great number of relatives and friends, who were circled around the parlor, the bride and groom marched into the room to the "Bridal Chorus" which was most pleasingly rendered by Miss Isabelle Hendricks. The happy couple advanced to the altar, where the officiating minister, who pronounced the ceremony that made two hearts one, as Miss Hendricks played the beautiful selection, "Love's Confession". After the ceremony the happy pair received the congratulations of their many friends and relatives and prepared to drive to Hardinsburg, where they will be at home to their friends at the home of Mrs. H. F. Roberts, a sister of the bride.

Miss Pate's costume was of white LaFayette silk and she carried a bunch of white carnations tied with white ribbon and looked very pretty indeed. She is a most lovable young woman and that community's loss will be Hardinsburg's gain.

Mr. Hall is a bookkeeper for J. B. Beal & Co., of Indianapolis, and is a young man of sterling qualities and well liked by all who know him. The News extends congratulations.

In one way it speaks well for a town that there are no vacant dwellings to be had, on the other hand it is a reflection on the public spiritedness of the citizens of that same town, when good people who are anxious to become residents, are forced to "move on" because they can find no place to lay their heads. Build more houses to rent at popular prices. Help yourself, help your town.

CHAPTER XXII.
LOBBYISTS AND ONE IN PARTICULAR.
WASHINGTON has known many lobbyists in its time, and it keeps on knowing them. The striking increase in legislation that aims to restrict unlawful or improper practices in business, the awakening of the public conscience, has caused a greater demand than ever for influence at the national capital, for these restrictive measures must be either killed or enswathened by the aid of usefulness by that process which is the salvation of many a corrupt manipulator, the process of amendment.

Predatory corporations, predatory business associations of different sorts and predatory individuals have their representatives on the field at Washington to ward off attack by any means that brains can devise or money procure and to obtain desired favors at a cost that will leave a profitable balance for the purchaser. When commercial tricksters, believing in the lobbyist's favorite maxim, "The People Forget," feel that they have outlived the latest reform movement and see "the old days" returning, the professional politicians introduce a few reform measures themselves, most stringent measures. They push these measures ahead until somebody pays up, then the bills die. The lobbyist knows all about these "strike" bills, but does not know on them. No, no. Toombs he helped draw up one of these bills so that, with the aid of his inside knowledge of his employer's business, the measure is made to give a greater scare than might otherwise have resulted. The bigger the scare the bigger the fund advanced, of course, for the lobbyist to handle. All this also helps the lobbyist to secure and retain employment.

Not all the Washington lobbyists are outside of congress. The senator or congressman has unequal facilities for oiling or blocking the course of a bill. Sometimes he confines himself to the interests of his own clients, while they may be. But sometimes he notices a bill that promises to be a pretty good thing for the client of some other member. If the senator or congressman has the bill so actively that he must be "let in on the deal" himself. This is very annoying to the other member, but the member who is working something. He has learned the value of observing other people's legislation.

The outsiders (members of the "third house") and the insiders have a bond of freemasonry uniting them; they exchange information as to what members of both houses can do for them. They can be "got to" (through whom) and how much they want. This information is carefully tabulated, and new prices for passing or defeating legislation can be quoted to interested parties just as the price of a carload of pork can be ascertained at a given time and place. This is the system that leads grafting members of short experience to wonder how knowledge of their taking what is termed "the sugar" got out and became known to their associates. Did they not have pledge of absolute secrecy? Yes, but the purchaser never tries to keep the information from those of his kind. Lobbyists must be honest with each other.

Not all lobbyists are men. The woman legislative agent has been known to occupy an important position in Washington, and she does yet. She is in to detect and frequently more unscrupulous than the men similarly engaged, if that is possible.

A woman with a measure of social standing would naturally prove the most successful as a lobbyist in Washington because of the opportunities her position would afford her to meet people of prominence. And just such a one was Mrs. Corn Spangler, with whom the Langlands had been thrown in contact quite intimately since their arrival at the capital.

Pretty and vivacious, Mrs. Spangler bore her thirty-seven years with uncommon ease, aided possibly by the makeup box and the modiste. Her dinners and reception were popular by people of acknowledged standing. Always a lavish spender of money, this was explained as possible because of a fortune left her by her late husband, Congressman Spangler of Pennsylvania. That this "fortune" had consisted largely of stock and bonds of a bankrupt copper mining company, the Langlands remained unknown except to her husband's family, one or two of her own relatives and Senator Peabody, who, coming from Pennsylvania, had known her husband intimately.

He it was who had suggested to her that she might make money easily by cultivating the acquaintance of the new members of both houses and their families, exerting her influence in various "perfectly legitimate ways," he argued, for against matters pending in legislation. The Standard Steel corporation kept Mrs. Spangler well supplied with funds deposited monthly to her account in a Philadelphia trust company.

She avoided suspicion by reason of her sex and her many acquaintances of undisputed rank. Senator Peabody was never invited to her home, had never attended a single dinner, reception or musicale she had given, all of which was a part of the policy they had mutually agreed on to deaden any suspicion that might come from Mrs. Spangler's relation to the Standard Steel company. It was well known that Peabody had been put into the senate by Standard Steel to look after its interests.

He had found Mrs. Spangler chiefly valuable thus far as a source of information regarding the members of congress, which she obtained directly from their families. He was thus able to gain an idea of their associations, their particular interests and their aspirations in relation to congress, which proved of much use to him in forming and promoting acquaintances, all for the glory of Standard Steel.

Senator Holcomb of Missouri told Mrs. Spangler at an afternoon tea confidentially that he was going to vote against the ship subsidy bill. Senator Peabody was informed of this two hours later by a note written in cipher. When the vote was called two days later Senator Holcomb voted for the bill. Standard Steel supplies steel for ocean liners, and their building must be encouraged.

Mrs. Winslow, wife of Congressman Winslow of Indiana, remarked to Mrs. Spangler at a reception that she was "so glad Jimmie is going to do something for us women at last. He says we ought to get silk gowns ever so much cheaper next year." Jimmie Winslow was a member of the house committee on ways and means and was lately engaged in the matter of tariff revision. When President Anderson of the Federal Silk company heard from Senator Peabody that Winslow favored lowering the tariff on silk a way was found to convince the congressman that the American silk industry was a weakening and many in the house would suffer if the foreign goods should be admitted any cheaper than at present.

"President Anderson would be willing to do Senator Peabody a favor some day."

Sometimes Corn Spangler shuddered at the thought of what would become of her if she should become a mere fatal error, and be discovered to her friends as a betrayer of confidences for money. A secret agent of Standard Steel in a newspaper gossip she would make "Society Favorites of Paid Spies." "Woman Lobbyist Feels Capital." The sensational headlines of the newspapers would tell her friends that she had been a traitor to her kind. Lobbyists must be honest with each other.

So reasoned Corn Spangler for the hundredth time during the last two years as she sat in her boudoir at her home. She had spent part of the day with Carolina and Hope Langland and in the evening had attended the musicale at their house. But she had been forced to leave early owing to a severe headache. Now, after an hour or two of rest, she felt better and was about to retire. Suddenly the telephone bell rang at a writing table. "Hello! Who is it?" she called. She had two telephones, one in the lower hall and one in her boudoir—to save walking downstairs unnecessarily, she explained to her woman friends. But the number of this upstairs telephone was not in the public book. It had a private number, known to but two people except herself.

Taking down the receiver, she asked in low voice, "Hello, who is it?" "Mr. Wall."

It was the name Senator Peabody used in telephone conversation with her. "Yes, congressman?" she responded. She always said "yes, congressman" in reply to "Mr. Wall," a prearranged manner of indicating that he was talking to the desired person. "I will need your services tomorrow," Mr. Wall said, "on a very important matter, I am afraid. Decline any engagements and hold yourself in readiness."

"I may send my friend S. to explain things at 10:30 to-morrow. If he does not arrive at that time, telephone me at 10:35 sharp. You know where. Understand? I have put off going to Philadelphia tonight."

"Yes."

"That is all; goodbye."

"Something very important," she murmured nervously as she turned from the desk.

"I don't like his tone of voice; sounds strained and worried—something unusual for the cool, bluff gentleman from Pennsylvania. And his 'friend S.' of course, means Stevens! Great heavens, then Stevens must now have knowledge of my—my business!"

She calmed herself and straightened a dainty, slender finger against her cheek.

"It must be something about that naval base bill, I'm sure. That's been worrying Peabody all season," she mused as she pressed a button to summon her maid.

The Ruling Passion.
His clothes said he was a tramp, but his brow was high and his manner grand. "Madam, may I request the favor of a pair of your husband's cast-off trousers? These are somewhat passé." This, with a sweep of a tattered hat, brought results in the shape of a pair of "babby" old ones, which were just about two degrees better than those the tramp was wearing. After critical review of his acquisition, instead of the polite words of thanks the good woman was waiting for, the tramp volunteered, with a long drawn sigh of regret, "Madam, I see your husband discards from weakness."—Luck.

Government Bureau's Sound Advice on Road Drainage--Remove all Water Quickly

CENTER SHOULD BE RAISED

The United States office of public roads in Washington sent out the following bulletin regarding the proper manner of road drainage:

With an average of 25,000 tons of water falling in the form of rain on each mile of public road in the United States annually, it is scarcely to be marvelled at that the ten commandments of the road builder can be summed up succinctly in the word "drainage." The saying has truth for a basis, as good drainage is the primary requisite for all roads. Even in sand roads this holds true, for there "good drainage" means such as will safely remove the storm water without erosion or gullying and will retain the surface moisture.

To obtain good drainage one must take into consideration both the surface water and the underground water. The surface water must be removed quickly and completely and without subjecting the road to excessive wear or erosion. For this reason the center of the road should be raised, and the slope toward the side ditches should be from one-half to one inch to each foot distance, or so that the water will run freely to the side ditches and not down the road or remain in puddles on the roadway. The side ditches should be of ample size to carry the severest storms, with a fall of not less than six inches to each hundred feet. Frequent, small cross drains should be constructed and every opportunity taken to get the water away from the road as quickly as possible. Any road along which you see water standing in the side ditches or on which puddles of water have collected or which has been badly eroded and underlaid by the rains has poor drainage and is in need of immediate attention. In fact, earth roads nearly always require a little attention after each rain.

The split log drag is essentially a tool to maintain good drainage on our

A ROAD THAT DRAINAGE WOULD IMPROVE, earth roads and should be used after each rain. On a heavy clay or gumbo soil the drag when properly used tends to puddle the road surface, keep it free from ruts, dense, smooth and hard, thus securing the best surface drainage possible.

But in many places the underground water is too near the surface and must be removed before a good road will be possible. This means that some form of subdrainage must be resorted to, usually tile drains or clay or concrete. Water from whatever source must be got rid of effectively. As water in freezing expands one-eighth its volume, the road breaks out of shape, and when the ice melts the road disintegrates beneath the rising tide of mud constantly fed by rains, melting snows and underground springs. In heavy and sticky places the subdrainage in order to be fully effective should lower the water level to not less than three feet below the road surface. If tiles are used they should be carefully laid, true to grade. Most failures in tile drainage can be attributed to carelessness in laying or too flat grade. Tiles less than four inches in diameter should rarely be used, nor should a grade of less than six inches to the hundred feet be used unless absolutely necessary. In a very dense soil it is always advisable to cover the tile to at least a depth of six to twelve inches with a coarse sand or fine gravel. Care should always be taken to provide a free outlet for the drains and to protect the outlet with a concrete bulkhead or catch basin, which can always be kept clean and the outlet free.

The kind of tile to be used depends on local conditions. Concrete tile if properly made is quite as good as clay tile. Which kind to use is entirely a local question of dollars and cents. If concrete tile can be made more cheaply than clay tile can be had, use concrete; if not, use clay tile.

THE PAIN MADE HER FAINT.

"For almost four years I had a sore on my leg," says Mrs. Olive Hurd, of Madison, N. H., "and this spring a doctor lealed it up. I felt fine for about a month but had to be on my feet a good deal and above my knee came a swelling as big as my fist. It hung down and was as red as if it had been blistered and as sore that I could hardly get around. The cords of my leg seemed to be stiff and the pain was so bad at times that it made me faint. One of the neighbors told me about Sloan's Liniment so I got a bottle and put some right on. Next morning I could walk over so much better and I kept on using the Liniment night and morning. It took down all the swelling and the redness and soreness have gone. I shall never be without Sloan's Liniment in the house again and will recommend it to all suffering friends."

Monkey and Goat.

Monkeys are more renowned for mischief than for kindness, but even monkeys can be benevolent. At Mouson records the doings of one in Guadeloupe that surely seemed to merit that reputation. This monkey had a friend in a goat that he daily took to the pasture. Every night the monkey would pick out the burs and thorns, sometimes to the number of 2,000 or 3,000, from the goat's fleece. In order that the animal might lie down in peace. On coming in from the pasture the goat regularly went in search of his friend, hauled him and submitted himself to the operation. Strange to say, the tricky instincts of the monkey reassured themselves after the prickles were removed. He would tense the poor goat unmercifully, picking his beard, poking him in the eyes and pulling on his hairs. The goat bore it all with patience, perhaps regarding it as only a fair price to be paid for the removal of the thorns--London Standard.

Ferguson and the Rabbits.

Robert Ferguson, the poet, was first matriculated at St. Andrew's university in the session of 1704-5. It was the custom at this time for each bursar to take his turn in dining "bleeding" at the mess. The college table having been surfeited with an unbroken diet of rabbits in various forms of cookery, Ferguson, on being called to my grace, repeated what is now celebrated lines:

For rabbits young and for rabbits old,
Ferguson, on being called to my grace,
For rabbits tender and for rabbits tough
Our thanks we render, for we've had enough.

It may be added Ferguson was not sent down, but the rabbits were "rusticated."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GOING ABOUT IN CHINA.

Useful Sedan Chair in the Crowded, Noisy Streets of Canton.

There are but two ways to go about Canton--on foot or in a sedan chair. The streets are from four to eight feet wide, the average being probably about six feet, and wheeled vehicles are out of the question. Even the jerricho cannot be used here. If you try to make your way on foot, the identity of the moving masses renders progress almost impossible, and rowdies and pickpockets are numerous, so that the best plan is to take a responsible native guide and chair.

The chairs are carried by two, three and sometimes four men, according to the weight of the passenger. The two-man poles by which the chair is supported are about eighteen feet long and are joined at the front and rear ends by a crosspiece. After you have taken your seat the coolies raise the ends of the poles to their shoulders and are off at a trot, only interrupted by a "congestion of traffic," which occurs very frequently.

It is surprising to see how rapidly they can go through the crowded streets. The whole line of chair carriers are yelling all the time, as are other people who are carrying burdens, for there are no carts in use. The entire merchandise of the city is transported in the same manner, not by chairs, of course, but slung on poles carried across the shoulders.

The noise resulting from the simultaneous shouting of every one in sight, both in front and in the rear, for the streets in going in both directions, is enough to make one wonder if the long expected riot has begun.--Denver Post

Lived 152 Years.

Wm. Parr--England's oldest man--married the third time at 120, worked in the fields till 132 and lived 20 years longer. People should be youthful at 80. James Wright, of Sparlock, Ky., shows how to remain young. "I feel just like a 16-year-old boy," he writes, "after taking six bottles of Electric Bitters. For thirty years kidney trouble made life a burden, but the first bottle of this wonderful medicine convinced me I had found the greatest cure on earth." They're a good deal to weak, sickly, run-down or old people. Try them. 50c at Severs Drug Store.

Inventor Davy and Love.

Sir Humphrey Davy, the inventor of the Davy lamp, found love something of a decision, if not a sure. Writing to his mother, he said, "I am the happiest of men in the hope of my union with a woman equally distinguished for virtues, talents and accomplishments." And in a letter to his brother he expressed his raptures that "Miss Apreece has consented to marry me, and when the event takes place I shall not only kings, princes or potentates." The widow must have been a person possessed of great powers of fascination, for Sir Henry Holland makes mention of her as a lady who made such a sensation in Edinburgh society that even a regent professor did not think it beneath his scholarship to go down on his knees in the street to fawn her shoe. The sequel need not be dwelt upon further than to add that the marriage turned out to be altogether a mistake.

The Quips.

The quips, upon which the ancient Peruvians kept their records and accounts, consisted of a thick main cord with smaller cords tied to it at certain distances. Upon these smaller cords the knots were tied by means of which the reckoning was kept. The length of the main rope varied from a foot to several yards. The cords were of various colors, each with its own proper meaning--an red for soldiers, yellow for gold, white for silver, green for corn, and so on. The reckoning seems to have been largely regulated by the distances of the knots from the main cord and the distance of the branches.--New York American.

To Transfer Printing.

Anything printed on paper with ordinary printer's ink can be transferred to a clean sheet of paper in the following manner: Take three drams of camellia oil and shake well together. Take a sponge or soft brush and apply some of the solution to the printed surface. Let it soak for a few minutes. Lay it face down upon the paper on which the transfer is required and press both together evenly between the leaves of a thick book placed under weights. In a time varying from half a minute to several hours, according to the newness of the printed original, it will be transferred in reverse.

Convict Labor in Building of Roads.

At a recent meeting of the national road boards, held in New York City, Senator C. T. Lassar of Virginia outlined the method of building roads with convicts in the Old Dominion. C. Gordon Rice, the chairman of the board, has decided to make a canvass of the entire United States to find out which states employ convicts in the building of roads. This will be followed up later with an effort to get other states to use convict labor in road building. There is a general movement to abolish convict labor in lines of the industry where it interferes with organized labor, but in no section of the country does organized labor object to the use of convicts in the building of good roads.

Poultry Secrets Disclosed!

THERE are secrets in the poultry business, as in any other; the best methods and newest discoveries seldom reach the amateur poultry raiser and the general public for years after they are originated. A new method of absolutely insuring the fertility of setting eggs, for example, has

and its disclosure is not to be blamed for keeping it so secret. For the first time, the secret of many of the most successful poultrymen are made public. No confidence has been violated, every secret has been

(1) by catching chickens, (2) by new penning given the author, Michael E. Rogers; (3) by collecting old, valuable, but little known methods; (4) by Mr. Rogers' own experience covering 20 years. Since this book was first published four or five months ago, it has been necessary to print eight editions, and many new and valuable secrets have been added to the original book.

A Few of the More Important Secrets

Rogers' new system for insuring fertility of setting eggs. Wagon's ingenious method for saving the weak hen from clogging. J. K. Kelly's system of in-breeding without the least loss of vitality. Selecting the laying hen--the central thought of the poultryman. Hiram, Potter and Palmer Systems. The Pile System, a latest method telling what it is and for what it is valuable. Several new food formulas, many of them the same as expensive "patented" foods. The 15-cent-a-bushel method of producing green. Gregory's Corn Feeding System, and other new rules for feeding corn and grain. Treadwell's method of obtaining high market prices for poultry crops. A simple method, admirably adapted to the small flock in village or suburb. Gregory's method of obtaining bulky food at a cost of 6 cents a bushel. Wood's System of Laying Eggs for producing eggs. Professor Rice's, Best Hen Secret explaining why you have don't lay.

AND MANY OTHERS, NOT MENTIONED HERE

It would be impossible to repeat every bit of this information to be unknown to everyone. We make no secret of this. But the great majority of poultrymen it will be absolutely new, and of great value. ABSTRACT FARM JOURNAL--Farm Journal has for thirty years made a specialty of poultry. CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1909

We should be as happy as possible and our happiness should last as long as possible; for those who can finally issue from self by the portal of happiness know infinitely wider freedom than those who pass through the gate of sadness.—Masterlinck.

Mrs. Mary RYAN. A woman who has lived long in Cloverport and has many good friends is Mrs. Mary Ryan whose home is on Houston and First streets in the East End. On her eighty-third birthday, Nov. 29, 1908, she had the photograph from which the accompanying picture was made.

For years more of health and enjoyment, for though she is past four score years, she yet seems very young to many of us.

In this issue of the News, Mr. Henderson, county president of the Sunday schools, announces the County Sunday School Convention to be held at McQuady, June 2nd, and in addition makes several requests of the Sunday school workers. Mr. Henderson is very enthusiastic over this meeting and is most desirous that it will be a successful one. Interest in Sunday school work seems to be wonderfully increasing in this county, especially in Cloverport and particularly the Methodist church. The Baptist denomination of this city has the banner school but the Presbyterians and Methodists have of late been getting a move on them. So, Mr. Henderson, you may expect at least, a better report from Cloverport, if not a most excellent one at the McQuady convention.

Bailey of Texas led off in the Senate tariff discussion of the last week with a brilliant two-days' speech in favor of his income tax amendment, urging that men should pay on the basis of what they had rather than what they wanted. He would protect labor by excluding immigrants. Among other amendments proposed was a tax on immigrants and a duty on lumber. The latter proposition was advocated by a number of Southern Democrats, who thereby repudiated the free lumber plank in their party platform. Bacon of Georgia said that party platforms were "made in the night and do not mean anything."

From time to time during the last year the News has been publishing brief sketches of the lives of our best citizens, both old and young. A pleasure has it been to us to do so, and the little life stories of our older friends have we enjoyed. There is much we might learn from the "old folks" if we would interest ourselves enough in them to listen to their talks about the experiences through which they have passed. Indeed, young people miss a great deal of the knowledge of life in heedlessly passing those who are blessed with old age.

A good woman in this town suggests that Charlie Lightfoot would make a good County Judge. She said she didn't know what party he affiliated with and she didn't care. She knew him to be a sober, intelligent, hardworking man and fairly well equipped for the place regardless of his politics. The Democrats ought to take this woman's advice and profit by it.

There ought to be a fine display of stock at Hardinsburg next Monday. Every man in the county who has a fine stallion, mare or gelding should make it a point to be there with his stock. It will show what we are doing in the stock business and will be a great incentive to the people in general to raise and produce better stock.

The News has an inquiry for a 250 or 600 acre farm. Party has cash to pay. Wants good land. Parties who have farms to sell should list them in our farm department. This party says he has a number of friends who would like to move to Breckenridge and buy farms if the land and prices suit them.

Thursday we mailed a large number of notifications cards to our subscribers and we appreciate all the renewals received. Those who have not responded to our request will understand why the News is discontinued.

If there are other women in this town or county, having a good man in view who would make a good county officer, the News will take pleasure in announcing their choice to the voters.

Next Monday is Circuit Court at Hardinsburg. Judge Chelf is reported sufficiently recovered from his recent sickness and will preside.

Say, Old Winter, haven't you lingered long enough?

LOUISVILLE TO BE LIKE FAIRYLAND.

When The Shriners Meet in June
Delightful Program Arranged for Four Days--
$75,000 Spent in Preparation.

THURSDAY "COMMERCIAL DAY"

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—(Special)—Elaborate plans have been worked out for the entertainment of the Ancient Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of America who will gather in Louisville, June 7 to 10, 1909. It will be the thirty-fifth annual session of the order. The official meeting will be held by four Imperial representatives from each of the 12 temples in the United States, Canada and Mexico, together with the Imperial Divan, or national officers.

Over thirty-five patrols or Shrine drill teams from as many different temples have already engaged accommodations in Louisville and will participate in a great night pageant of the Shriners, in the exhibition drills and in the grand review. The Louisville committee, under the chairmanship of Frank Febr, and citizens have together spent upwards of $75,000 in preparation for the meeting. This sum has gone almost exclusively for illuminations and decorations and the Kentucky metropolis will be a veritable fairyland of lights and bunting and there is to be a gorgeous Court of Honor four blocks in length. Among the special features is the largest electric clock in the world. It will be located in the Army where the grand ball and other Shrine week functions will take place. This magnificent decorative feature is forty-five feet long, with a dial seventy-five feet in circumference. It is illuminated by 5,500 electric globes.

The week's program will open on Monday morning, June 7, with a formal reception of visiting Shriners and the escort of each Temple to its headquarters. During the afternoon of the first day an excursion on the beautiful Ohio river will take place, three patrol teams having been chartered for the use of the Shriners and their ladies. Each boat will be equipped with a band of music and refreshments will be served. At a reception in honor of the Imperial Divan will be held at the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home, accompanied by a musical program participated in by a chorus of 500 children.

On Tuesday morning the first session of the Imperial Council will be held in the Army. Addresses of welcome will be made by Mayor James H. Cravens, of Louisville, and the Hon. Augustus E. Willson, Governor of Kentucky. Tuesday night will be marked by the grand electrical pageant of patrols. It is estimated that not less than 10,000 Shriners will appear in this line of march.

A continuation of the exhibition drills will mark the Wednesday morning program. At the same time visiting ladies will be entertained by automobile rides. One hundred motor cars have been placed at the disposal of the entertaining committee for this purpose. During the afternoon there will be a series of automobile races at one of the Jockey Club parks, in which the leading professional drivers of America will participate. This will be followed by a regimental review of all patrols and a concert by twenty-five or thirty bands.

One of the novelties of the week will be a "southern negro entertainment." Five hundred negro men and women will participate in this entertainment. Plantation melodies and old time songs will be sung and the function will conclude with a genuine Southern cake walk. Preceding the entertainment there will be a great watermelon feast. Thursday morning will be known as "Commercial Day." Visits will be paid to various industries typical of Kentucky manufacturing genius. The afternoon of that day will be marked by a grand spectacular open air drama titled "The Attack on Bananastown." Over 1,000 soldiers and Indians will take part in this event. The last formal function in connection with the week's program will be the grand Shriners ball in the Army on Thursday night.

Holland Rejoices.

JUST TIME.

The Wonderful Part It Plays in the Earth's History.

Truly it is hard for us to realize what a part time has played in the earth's history—just time, duration—so slowly, oh, so slowly, have the great changes been brought about! The turning of mud and silt into rock in the bottom of the old seas seems to have been merely a question of time. Mud does not become rock in man's time nor vegetable matter become coal. These processes are too slow for us. The flexing and folding of the rocky strata, miles deep, under an even pressure is only a question of time. Allow time enough and force enough and a layer of granite may be bent like a bow. The crystals of the rock seem to adjust themselves to the strain and to take up new positions, just as they do much more rapidly in a cake of ice under pressure. Probably no human agency could flex a stratum of rock, because there is not time enough even if there were power enough. "A low temperature acting gradually," says my geology, "during an indefinite age would produce results that could not be otherwise brought about even through greater heat." "Give us time," say the great mechanical forces, "and we will show you the immobile rocks and your rigid mountain chains as flexible as a piece of leather." "Give us time," say the deers and the fawns and the snowflakes, "and we will make you a garden out of those same stultified rocks and frowning ledges." "Give us time," says Life, starting with its protozoons in the old Cambrian seas, "and I will not stop till I have peopled the earth with myriad forms, and crowned them with man."—John Burroughs in Atlantic.

It Gets the Criminals.

According to the Chinese method of criminal prosecution, a man is responsible for the crime he may have committed personally, but if he chooses to escape justice by running away from the place where the deed was committed then the remaining members of his immediate family are held and punished in lieu of the real culprit. This may seem a strange way of attracting the real criminal back to the scene of his crime, but it appeals to the religious side of the man's superstitious nature. According to their religion, the man who forsakes his parents when in peril will find his soul smiling around through hives without chart or compass for all eternity. In view of this compliance with the law is very prompt, for John Chinaman does not care to take the desperate chance.

Hick, commissioners of this court heretofore appointed to make a settlement with the sheriff, are directed to this day produce, to justices O'Reilly and Bates, a committee of this court appointed to examine this settlement with the sheriff for taxes for the year 1908, the settlement and make, and together they will examine the same and make a report of their acts and findings on tomorrow morning.

It is ordered by the court that the sheriff of Breckinridge county, be and he is hereby directed to forthwith produce to the justices of the peace of the respective districts, a separate list of those he reports delinquent from each district, and said magistrates are appointed a committee of the whole, each to report as to whether or not such persons are delinquents, and they will make report at 10 o'clock.

It is ordered that justices Ruppert and Vessels be and they are appointed as a committee to examine and report upon the condition of the public property, and they will make such recommendations and suggestions as they may see proper.

This day came James V. McClure, Supervisor of Roads and Bridges, and filed an itemized report of all road tolls belonging to the county now in the hands of overseers, assistant supervisors and in the county barn, which was filed. The Supervisor is directed to ascertain the whereabouts of four roads, which should have been reported by the assistant supervisor of district No. 3.

This day came J. V. StClair, Supervisor of Roads and Bridges, pursuant to an order of the County Judge directing him to make a report of the damage occasioned to bridges by recent heavy rains and their present condition, and files the following report, which is ordered received, and is in words and figures as follows:

North Fork bridge, the appache are washed away, and will be necessary to raise bridge 4 feet. Estimated cost of raising about 10 cents. Putting back approaches, $75. Total $575.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you honestly say that you did not receive any benefit from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 25 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous and so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys produce blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrhs of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickly by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Koot corrects inability to hold urine and sealding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Koot, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince you.

Swamp-Koot is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but send for the name Swamp-Koot, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Koot—if you do you will be disappointed.

Dent's bridge is in bad condition and is unfit for public travel, and should be replaced by new iron bridge, estimated cost, $700. Rooster bridge is in bad shape, but, if repaired, could be used to last three or four years; cost of repairs $150.

ROOSEVELT

Arrives In Africa—Greatly interested In The Country—Welcomed By Natives.

Kapiti Plains, British East Africa, April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt reached the hunting grounds and tonight will spend his first night in Africa under canvas. A big camp has been established near the railroad station here for the Roosevelt expedition and last night lions were prowling in the vicinity of the tents. The count is given, owing to the recent rains, there is every prospect of good sport. The common varieties of game are plentiful and the hunters will lose no time in getting started on their shooting trip. The special train bearing the Roosevelt party from Mombasa arrived here at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, only the members of the party got off at Kapiti Plains. E. J. Jackson, the acting Governor of the Protectorate, and the other officials who came up from Mombasa, continued on to Nairobi.

The camp established for Mr. Roosevelt is most elaborate. The caravan will have a total of 260 followers. There are thirteen tents for the Europeans and their horses, and sixty tents for the porters. An American flag is flying over the tent to be occupied by Mr. Roosevelt. All the native porters of the expedition were lined up on the platform when the Roosevelt special pulled in, and as Mr. Roosevelt stepped down from the train they shouted a salute in his honor. In response Mr. Roosevelt raised his hat.

Mr. Roosevelt was welcomed at the station by Sir Alfred Pease, who will be his host on the Athi River. Mr. Pease is dressed to-day in a khaki suit and a white helmet. The weather is bright and warm.

Mr. Roosevelt was on the cowcatcher of the engine when the train pulled in having occupied that position for the twenty-nine miles between Mombasa and Kapiti Plains. He said he was intensely interested in the country and expressed his gratitude and delight at the hospitality shown him by the acting Governor and Mrs. Jackson.

The caravan awaiting the Roosevelt party includes four headmen, nine gun bearers, twelve armed guards, 200 porters, and nine horses.

Mr. Selona is going on a lion hunt with Mr. McMillan. He is not attached to the Roosevelt party, the only members of which licensed to shoot lions are Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit.

PERFECT FLIERS.

Eagles, Vultures and Similar Birds Are in This Class.

It is a fact that those ingenious and daring minds that devote themselves to the solution of the problem of aviation have given no small part of their preliminary study to considering the manner of flight of birds.

A strange result of this investigation is the conclusion, now generally indorsed, that, as a whole, the bird world is not so perfect in its attainment of flight. For instance, it is contended by the best authorities that all birds are obliged continually to flap their wings and that this necessary motion may be mentioned, sparrows, finches, thrushes, crows, etc.—are still in an imperfect stage of advancement.

In the next stage of this theory advanced, are put such birds as pigeons, swallows, etc., which are able to dart about for a space after they have gained a good start by the vigorous flapping of their pinions.

In the third class the birds that may be said to be perfect fliers are the eagles, vultures, albatrosses and similar big birds possessing the ability to rise and fall and swoop and soar in the air indefinitely without a perceptible movement of their wings. It is, of course, known to every person of an observant turn that these big fowls are able to soar into the air gradually until at last they disappear from the eye of the watcher, it being almost impossible to detect any movement beyond a slight occasional motion of the tail.—New York Tribune.

Don't let the baby suffer from eczema, sores or any itching of the skin. Doan's Ointment gives instant relief, cures quickly. Perfectly safe for children. All druggists sell it.

Compulsion.

Little five-year-old Bessie was telling about some medicine she had taken while ill. "Yes," she said, "I took some compulsion of cod liver oil, and"—

"You mean cod liver oil, don't you, dear, not compulsion?" inquired the father.

"Well," rejoined Bessie, "there was a good deal of compulsion about it!"—Chicago News.

Dear Eliza—Dick has just given me an Easter present that is going to be the comfort of my life. Yes, I know that in the proper sequence of things I should have been so delighted and surprised (I bought it myself) to find the gift in my dressing room on Easter morning, but the truth is I just couldn't wait a day longer without a peep into my full length triple mirror.

For this the present I should be receiving on Sunday morning, April 11. I do wonder, though, what I really will find on my breakfast plate on this auspicious morning. But it's too far off for me to even try to anticipate the idea of mother gift. Still, I would give Dick a jolly good hug if he remembered how I liked that. No! I won't even tell you what it was. It's too precious—in fact, priceless—to me.

But to describe this mirror. Every woman nowadays who goes in for dress as a fine art—and most all New York women do—are obliged to own one of these things. When fashions are so freakish one cannot run the risk of appearing in a more outlandish guise than Mrs. Mode intends one should. One does not feel safe in being insured by one's mirror that she is well put up from one vantage point. She must be authoritatively perfect from every angle. Now, this is exactly what the triple mirror does for you. And if used minutely—sounds like a patent medicine ad, doesn't it?—at each dressing you know to a certainty whether you tattle, our neck or carry it gracefully pulled over the shoulders.

For your hat, why, a "chopping bowl" affair even has attractions viewed from the right angle triangle of a triplicate. You know what a vast difference the least difference in the adjustment of a chapeau means to femininity, exactly the difference between good looks and ugliness.

"That awfully good manikurist I have told you about uses a triple mirror when she works with the hands of her patrons. In this glass she shows them how to avoid unightly poses of the hands that are seen by their neighbors at card table or dinners."

The way I'm booming these mirrors will probably lead you to suppose that I have the agency for disposing of them. Unfortunately this luck goes to a Fifth avenue firm. But I am crazy over the thing and just simply cannot resist the temptation to tell you of it. Of course I'm not often satisfied with 'no result'; but, as Browning says, the possible best is a comfort to achieve.

"And talking of Browning reminds me of Dick's latest piece of impudence. You know, dear, we have just separated a literary club in our neighborhood, and the other afternoon I found Dick home when I came from the last meeting. "Well," he asked cheerfully, looking up over the top of his paper, "what was the topic under discussion by the club this afternoon?"

"For a minute I couldn't think what we had been talking about. Everything was so stupid. Then finally I blurted out: "Oh, yes, I recalled. We discussed that horrid woman that's moved in across the street, and Longfellow."

I actually failed to realize what I'd said until a perfect howl greeted my astonished ears. Nasty of him, wasn't it?

I am absolutely fagged out from trying to run a spring tale to cover that I could wear without looking as frightful as I think I have succeeded in capturing the brush, to use a hunting term, in the chapeau of bronze green straw I have sketched for you. In the season's modeling of shapes this is a very conventional model, but it has a signature inside the crown that would satisfy any woman of its rhinoceros, even if she overlooked the lovely great white marsh roses about the crown and the long ends of bronze velvet ribbon that tie under the chin. The average hats of the spring are wildly eccentric, and they grow worse and worse. There is more than one queer shape.

There's the funnel, the dove-tail and the large spreading tray from which to select, but there is one trait common to them all—they play hide and seek with their wearers' faces. Two features—those which do bring out prominence—the teeth and the nose. So if a girl has a good set of teeth and a buff nose, or the reverse, she's better off than the average one, and it would be better to select a model more impartial in its demands. But you, dear, are fortunate in having one any hat would be proud to adorn.

The newest thing in veils has flowers attached at the top, where it is arranged about the hair. I saw one young woman at Eliza's the other afternoon wearing a small blue turban in dull, silky straw, with a face veil of blue net draped irregularly around the top with tiny shaded pink and red roses. This veil was put on in such a way that the roses outlined the crown, and there was no crushing or creasing of the material, as is the case when the veil is adjusted over the forehead. Just try the effect of a similar arrangement and see how fetching it is!

Elizabeth X. has just called me up on the phone and asked me to go with her to the Colony club to see the loan exhibition of household appliances of the eighteenth century. This is the smartest woman's club in the country. Mrs. John Jacob Astor, I think, is the president, and I will have lots to tell you about what I saw when I "take my men in hand again" to give you a promy allusion of the doing of "little old New York." Until then, yours lovingly, MABEL.

A QUICK CHANGE.

From the Desire For Comfort to the Crazy For Speed.

Mr. Newcar (about to start on his first trip in his recently purchased motor car, to his chauffeur)—Now, William, I want it thoroughly understood I will not have fast driving. Always use the proper legal limit—not as close to it as you can. Ten miles an hour is fast enough for me. What I want is comfort, not excitement. Do you understand?

Three days later. "Er—er—William, I must be back to the house by 7 o'clock. This road seems very straight and smooth, and I don't think you go just a little faster without danger?"

Two days later. "William, this dust is very unpleasant. If you could pass that car ahead—it seems to be going rather slowly."

Next day. "Put on a little more speed, William, no police within five miles, I'll bet, and if there are who cares? I'm out for fun! Let her zip! Let her zip! This is no steam roller! Let's have some speed!"—Life.
